³*Dear friends, although I was very eager to write to you about the salvation we share, I felt compelled to write and urge you to contend for the faith that was once for all entrusted to God's holy people.*

Letter from the Executive Director

IN THE OPENING LINES of his epistle, Jude urges the believers not to share their faith, stand firm in their faith, or persevere in their faith (though believers are told elsewhere to do so). No, he tells his readers to do something even more difficult: Contend for the faith. Jude used a unique word to communicate his message. It's the same word Plutarch used in his Lives to describe the military wrestling match between ancient Rome and Hannibal, the genius general that threatened to destroy it. For Plutarch, a straightforward military reference. For Jude, a metaphorical call to continuously fight for and defend the faith entrusted to God's holy people.

As Reasonable Faith nears twenty years of ministry, our aim is as focused and bold as it has ever been: To provide an articulate, intelligent, gracious, yet uncompromising defense of the Christian faith in the public arena. I can think of no better descriptive words for the work Reasonable Faith does. Perhaps we can sum up our entire mission into these four words: Contend for the faith. After almost twenty years, we believe we're just getting started.

Our work, anchored by Dr. Craig's rigorous and integrated approach, comes to fruition in his Systematic Philosophical Theology (SPT). A series of volumes that will influence Christian thought for generations to come. By the end of 2025, Volumes I, IIa, and IIb will have been published — a monumental accomplishment on its own — with Volumes III-V soon to follow in 2026-2027.

Reasonable Faith's digital footprint now places our contention for the faith into the hands of anyone with an electronic device. Behind the millions of monthly engagements we receive are faces and stories of changed lives: a student finding confidence to challenge his professor, a parent navigating tough questions at the dinner table, an intellectual answering faith-killing questions about Platonism, discipleship classes growing in their knowledge of the attributes of God.

Younger generations who want more than slogans are interested in truth that is intellectually serious and has spiritual depth. They want more than just facts; they want Jesus. Reasonable Faith stands at the intersection of both the mind and the heart, welcoming honest questions and pointing to the goodness of the gospel we have received.

As we approach our twentieth year, Reasonable Faith will continue to contend for a faith that is reasonable by providing a reason that is faithful — come what may.

Thank you for your prayer, your generosity, and your trust. We welcome your partnership as we look eagerly to the work that is still to be done.

Annual Report on Systematic Philosophical Theology

ONLY IN MY DREAMS could I have imagined that I would be at this point in writing my multi-volume Systematic Philosophical Theology. I have now completed four full volumes and am currently engaged in writing the fifth and final volume in the series. Unbelievable! This final volume is on Ecclesiology and Eschatology, the two areas of systematic theology about which I know the least. I anticipated that this volume would be less interesting than previous volumes. But I am finding the subject of the sacraments and, in particular, the Lord's Supper so fascinating and am learning so much! Every day I look forward to working on this subject.

Vols. I and IIa have now appeared and are handsome volumes, indeed. Vol. IIb is currently in production and scheduled to appear by the end of the year. Vol. III is close behind, requiring Wiley-Blackwell to get permissions for the reproduction of numerous figures. Vols. IV and V are under contract, and I'm slated to send in the first draft of vol. IV next year. I hope in two years to have finished writing vol. V.

As I push forward, my request would be that you would pray for me for productivity and perseverance to bring this project to successful completion.

Global Chapter Director Report

THROUGH THE VARIOUS Reasonable Faith platforms, Dr. Craig is able to reach millions of people around the world. However, as impressive as this is, he can't answer every question, tailor what's presented so that it meets every need, or make specific applications for people's current life situations.

This is precisely where the Reasonable Faith chapters shine. Our chapter directors can field questions directly, tailor their meetings to the level and curiosity of their attendees, and help to construct bridges between information and application.

Currently, there are 256 chapters in 39 countries on 6 continents. In order to avoid a sort of cookie-cutter, one-size-fits-all approach, we have intentionally built flexibility into the way our chapters run. For example, we don't set rules for where a chapter must meet. Many meet in churches and focus on strengthening believers' faith by clarifying Christian doctrines and providing rational justification for Christian truth claims. Others focus on drawing in unbelievers by meeting in more "neutral" locations, such as cafes, libraries, restaurants, college campuses, homes, community centers, and more. We even had one gentleman in the Navy who wanted to open a chapter on a submarine! As Dr. Craig notes, two of the purposes of apologetics are "to train Christians to state and defend Christian truth claims with greater effectiveness" and "to challenge unbelievers with the truth of biblical Christianity." These purposes are certainly being accomplished across the world through our chapters.

The tremendous success of our chapters program is owed directly to the support of our donors, whose generosity allows us to provide the training and materials that chapter directors need to make the greatest impact possible. The Lord has been pleased to use these chapters to bring people to salvation, to adjust public perception of the faith and to comfort people during dark nights of the soul. We are incredibly grateful and pray that you will continue to partner with us as we continue to raise up Christian leaders worldwide!

LATAM Regional Chapters

SINCE TAKING ON the role of Regional Chapter Director in 2019, the Reasonable Faith chapters across Latin America and Spain have experienced extraordinary expansion. In 2019, we began with just 13 certified chapter director's total. As of 2025, that number has risen to 54 certified chapter directors—representing an astounding increase in only six years. Growth has been steady and widespread, with Mexico showing the most remarkable increase (from 5 chapters in 2019 to 19 in 2025). Other key areas such as Colombia, Costa Rica, and Peru also moved from a minimal presence to strong networks, while new regions like the USA and Puerto Rico joined the movement for the first time. This trajectory reflects an average annual growth rate of approximately 25–27%, underscoring both the momentum and stability of our mission. These numbers demonstrate that Reasonable Faith is not only expanding but also establishing deep roots across the Spanish-speaking world.

Growth of Reasonable Faith Chapters in Latin America

Reasonable Faith Chapter San Luis Potosí, Mexico

CHAPTER DIRECTOR: RAÚL JARAMILLO

This year, we launched a local course inspired by Dr. William Lane Craig's Defenders class, designed to equip believers with a deeper understanding of Christian doctrine and apologetics. We are thrilled to have access to the Spanish translation of Bruce Milne's Know the Truth, titled Conocerán La Verdad, which has become a foundational resource for our sessions.

Our group meets regularly at our local church in San Luis Potosí, with around 10 committed students. We began with the doctrine of Revelation and have been progressing steadily through key theological topics, including insightful glimpses into Church History. The course has sparked growing interest among church members in theology, Christian doctrine, and apologetics—an encouraging sign of spiritual and intellectual engagement.

Looking ahead, we are preparing for a major event in November in collaboration with Rigoberto Hidalgo, a fellow chapter director and a leading voice in Spanish-speaking apologetics. Rigoberto will be a featured speaker at our church's largest youth gathering, which draws between 500 and 700 attendees ranging from ages 11 to 35. This promises to be a powerful opportunity to present the case for Christian faith to a new generation.

We are excited about what God is doing through Reasonable Faith in our city and look forward to continued growth and impact in the months ahead.

Reasonable Faith Chapter – Nuevo León, Mexico

CHAPTER DIRECTOR: RAMÓN GONZÁLEZ

This year, Ramón González was invited to deliver a series of thought-provoking talks on key apologetic topics, including Science vs. God, Arguments for God's Existence, Evidence for Jesus of Nazareth, and Christology. These conferences were hosted by a growing student-led initiative called Alas del Conocimiento (Wings of Knowledge), based at the Tecnológico de Monterrey university campus. The group's mission is to foster meaningful conversations about Christianity within secular academic environments, and to bring in guest speakers who can address foundational questions of faith with intellectual rigor and clarity.

Each of Ramón's talks drew an estimated audience of around 30 attendees, ranging in age from 18 to 60. The diversity and engagement of the participants reflect a growing interest in apologetics and the relevance of Christian thought in academic and cultural discussions.

We are encouraged by the momentum in Nuevo León and the impact of these events, and we look forward to continued collaboration with student groups and universities to expand the reach of Reasonable Faith in Mexico.

Reasonable Faith Chapter Buga, Colombia

CHAPTER DIRECTOR: JUAN JOSÉ HENAO

In a significant milestone for our RF chapters, Juan José Henao hosted the first official Chapter Director meeting in Buga with a dynamic 4-hour seminar based on Dr. William Lane Craig's book Reasonable Faith. The content was presented in a clear and engaging manner, tailored to resonate with regular church attendees and designed to be both intellectually accessible and spiritually enriching. The seminar was primarily directed toward young people and their parents, with the goal of providing holistic resources and practical tools that can be applied in academic and professional settings. The response was enthusiastic, highlighting a growing interest in apologetics and the integration of faith with everyday life.

Looking ahead, we are preparing a new seminar focused on The Bible: Its Origins and Reliability, scheduled to launch in October 2025. This upcoming event aims to deepen understanding of Scripture and strengthen confidence in its historical and theological foundations.

We are excited about the momentum in Buga and the opportunities to continue equipping believers with thoughtful and robust Christian teaching.

Reasonable Faith Chapter La Libertad, Peru

CHAPTER DIRECTOR: ERICK ROMERO

Erick Romero successfully launched his first Chapter Director meeting in La Libertad, Peru. His chapter brings together individuals of various ages, united by a shared interest in apologetics and foundational Christian doctrine.

The group is focused on creating a space for thoughtful discussion and learning, where participants can explore the evidences God has provided for His truth. Through engaging study sessions, the chapter aims to equip believers with a deeper understanding of their faith and the tools to articulate it confidently in both personal and public contexts. We anticipate that this chapter will continue to grow and become a valuable resource for Christians in Peru, fostering a vibrant community of inquiry and spiritual formation.

Brazil Regional Chapters

OVER THE FINAL MONTHS of 2024 and the first half of 2025, we saw steady, encouraging momentum across Brazil. We equipped believers and reached new audiences with thoughtful Christian witness.

Our presence on social media became more consistent and intentional. In one year, we moved from 280 to 308 posts and then to 333 posts — each figure per semester. It is a clear step forward. In other words, we showed up more often and served people better.

Interest in serving as Chapter Directors remained strong. A steady stream of candidates entered the pipeline, and our application website now welcomes more than 2,600 visits each month. It greets people well, explains the path, and channels new leaders into certification.

We advanced translation, dubbing, and subtitling to place high-value resources in the hands of churches and students. Defenders Class continues to grow in Portuguese, and we built simple navigation inside YouTube so learners can move through each lesson with confidence. Month by month, students and interested people tell us these tools are meeting real needs.

One story captures this season. In Tupã, São Paulo, Anderson Taddei leads a Chapter at Igreja Batista de Tupã.

With steady, clear apologetics teaching month after month, the group has grown to many students. (See photo below).

Another story comes from São Paulo. Weekly meetings at Universidade Presbiteriana Mackenzie, led by Felipe Forti, have continued every Wednesday. Mackenzie has kept this door open since 2023, and it remains significant – one of Brazil’s oldest and most respected educational institutions – with strong interest among students.

These stories put faces to our mission and show how steady effort bears fruit over time.

Looking ahead, we are moving at full steam. We have a clear pipeline of projects, and we are eager to deliver them to serve churches, students, and seekers across Brazil. We move forward confident that God will help us, for as the Scriptures teach, “commit your work to the Lord, and your plans will be established” (Prov 16.3).

Video Is Spoken Here

IS IT WORTH ALL THE EFFORT?

Creating an animated series begins with research, script writing, and revisions. Then, when Dr. Craig finally gives the green light, we leap into video production mode with a producer, director, audio engineer, teleprompter operator, camera man, production assistants, and a truck load of gear. After the video shoots are wrapped, we hunker down with our laptops for long hours editing the footage, animating the visuals, and designing the sound. After the final tweaks are made, we format these newly minted assets for upload to various social media platforms.

WHY DO WE BOTHER?

Because video is the language of popular culture. That means that if we want to “provide an articulate, intelligent, yet gracious defense of the Christian faith in the public arena,” we must speak the language that’s spoken in the public arena. That’s why Dr. Craig speaks fluent video. Our short videos and animations are built on the content of his written material, but they have the advantage of being able to reach those who are less likely to delve into his books and articles.

WHY SHOULD WE EXPLORE GOD’S ATTRIBUTES?

The nearly completed “Attributes of God” animation series provides a good working knowledge of God’s essential nature, which is foundational to effective apologetics. Familiarity with God’s various attributes enables us to defend the coherence of Theism. When discussing the problem of evil, for example, we need to be able to explain how God can be both all-good and all powerful. What’s more, God’s attributes are determinative of all other Christian doctrines. The atonement, for instance, is directly connected to God’s moral attributes of justice and mercy. Finally, for us to personally know God, we must know about God. Our understanding of what God is like affects how you and I relate to Him.

We’re confident that the “Attributes” video animation series will clear up a lot of confusion on the subject and enable Christians to reach unbelievers with greater effectiveness. The Reasonable Faith team is thrilled to offer this content in the language of the people, so that timeless truth finds its voice in today’s digital arena.

Marketing and Digital

2.49 BILLION. That's how many active global users YouTube reports each month. And every minute, more than 500 hours of video are uploaded to the platform. The average watching session? 40 minutes. That's a certain kind of power. One we don't want to ignore.

When it comes to marketing in today's modern world, three realities must be leveraged:

1. We're visual.
2. We're digital.
3. We're not alone.

Extraterrestrials notwithstanding, I'm talking about the competition for attention on that last one. We all experience the sheer volume of voices, opinions, channels, platforms, advertisements, and images that daily crescendo into a deafening cacophony of distraction. So how do we navigate a space that leaves little...space? Why even add our voice to the vying marketplace of noise?

I'll be honest, it's a question I've wrestled with personally, pastorally, and professionally. It's a question Michael Lepien and I have discussed time and time again. How many resources do we expend to occupy platforms like YouTube, knowing its downfalls, resisting the lure of metric-driven values, subverting the culture of carnal sensationalism — all for the sake of something greater? Or, perhaps we just disconnect, disengage, and hope for the best.

We know the answer. And I'm not trying to be dramatic. As I draw near the end of my 9th year creating and curating video content for Reasonable Faith, I find it more essential than ever in this field to tether myself to truer values and healthy expectations; both in my role as Media Coordinator/Strategy & Marketing, as well as for our digital vision as a ministry.

At the genesis of Reasonable Faith, and still at the forefront of our mission, is the call to provide an articulate, intelligent voice for biblical Christianity in the public arena. In the public arena: YouTube and the like.

What was once a convenient, and fairly innocuous, harbor for docking our video content is now a major global trading post of ideas...however boisterous. But, if we believe in these life-altering truths we proclaim, in the beauty of the Gospel at work, in the power of the Spirit to speak through voice, video, writing, and image, then we would be wise to harness and steward the tools of our era. Which we have done! I believe we must continue to do so with growing skill, intentionality, and effectiveness -- and all without compromising our core identity as a ministry, more importantly, as ambassadors of Christ and His Kingdom.

With that bedrock desire in place, I wanted to craft some meaningful values for how we engage digital media in the modern era. I've written these Reasonable Faith Digital Ministry Commitments for that purpose. As our team labors to make Christ known through this arena, and as our partners continue to generously supply the means, may these values serve as a scaffolding on which we can build and flourish.

REASONABLE FAITH DIGITAL MINISTRY COMMITMENTS

- We will responsibly steward the power of digital media: social platforms, video, web, and email. However, we will not allow digital media to overpower or lead us.
- We will not primarily measure our fruit by the world's standards.
 - The seeds we sow take time and so the plants God grows often do as well. There will be testimonies we never hear -- actual lives changed -- and our analytics will pale in comparison.
- We recognize the very real competition for attention and the importance of expanding our reach globally, yet we will likewise remain committed to Christ's emphasis on "the one" and individual persons.
 - We're not aiming for crowds and numbers so much as hearts, souls, and minds.

- We will seek to faithfully celebrate increase, honestly evaluate decline, resist the status quo, and prayerfully strategize for future effectiveness.
- We will stay abreast of positive trends and best practices, integrating them without being confined by them.
- We will find healthy ways to employ the use of AI while not allowing it to replace human discernment, ingenuity, decision-making, team-collaboration, or leadership.
- We will stand on the truth that God’s word runs swiftly and we serve as humble vessels of speeding

His cause in the Earth through the fastest and farthestreaching methods the world has ever witnessed.

May these above function to crystallize certain core values as well as continually rightsize our expectations. With that lens in place, allow me to share a collection of key insights from our YouTube channels and email campaigns.

Equip Platform

OUR GOAL WITH the Equip platform was to create a guided tour of Dr. Craig's content through free, carefully curated online courses. We've published twelve of these courses so far, and we continue to be encouraged by the many individuals and groups who share their experiences of growing deeper in their faith because of Equip. We have received 98-99 percent positive feedback from over 350 survey respondents. These students affirm that their ability to 1.) defend their faith and 2.) discuss it with other people has been enhanced because of the material they studied in Equip courses!

Since Equip launched in September of 2022, over 11,300 users have created an account on the platform. These users have combined to complete 2,374 courses and 57,620 quizzes with perfect scores.

In the past year, we coordinated more community-focused efforts on the platform. First, we relocated the main Reasonable Faith forums onto the Equip platform, because Equip offers a more modern and functional home for those lively discussions. We also coordinated with a few high school and Sunday school teachers to enhance Equip for their classes — but there's still a lot of work that needs to be done to make Equip even more group-friendly.

Our main goal for the next 6 months will be to build more courses!

- Q3 2024: MOLINISM PART 1
- Q3 2024: MOLINISM PART 2
- Q1 2025: DOCTRINE OF SCRIPTURE
- Q1 2025: GOD'S RELATIONSHIP TO TIME
- Q3 2025: THE ATONEMENT

Additionally, we are building an Equip app. This will allow the courses to be taken much more easily on phones and tablets, which will enable us to reach more members of the younger generations.

The most common message we receive about Equip is, essentially, "We want more!" More courses, more features, and more ways to utilize Dr. Craig's material for the expansion of God's Kingdom. It has been an incredible privilege to work on this project, and we hope that Equip will be an evolving and growing tool for many years to come.
